DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Regarding claims 1 and 14, Keddy (4,6345,339) discloses all of the limitations of the claim except for the mesh grill configured with openings such that the ratio of opening area to grill material area is more than forty percent. However, since the applicant has failed to establish any criticality or synergistic results which are derived from the recited configurations, these limitations are considered a matter of obvious design choice. Thus, the applicant's design configurations would have been an obvious improvement to one of ordinary skill in the art with regard to the apparatus disclosed in Keddy. See fig. 1, 82 and 84.

Claim(s) 2-4, 8, 15 and 16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Keddy in view of Harris et al. (5,046,406). Keddy discloses all of the limitations of the claim(s) except for plurality of vertical louvers. Harris et al. discloses the presence of a plurality of vertical louvers. See abstract. Hence, one skilled in the art would find it obvious to modify the system of Keddy to include the plurality of vertical louvers of Harris et al. for the purpose of better airflow directing. Regarding claims 3, 4, 8, and 16, see 124.

Claim(s) 5 and 6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Keddy in view of Harris et al. and in further view of Bang et al. (5,850,742). Keddy in view of Harris et al. discloses all of the limitations of the claim(s) except for the apparatus being coupled to an electric motor. Bang et al. discloses the presence of an apparatus being coupled to an electric motor. See col. 5, lines 20-40 and 4 and 5. Hence, one skilled in the art would find it obvious to modify the system of Keddy in view of Harris et al. to include a the apparatus being coupled to an electric motor of Bang et al. for the purpose of improved automation.

Claim(s) 7 and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Keddy in view of Harris et al. and in further view of Vagedes (5,293,920). Keddy in view of Harris et al. discloses all of the limitations of the claim(s) except for an apparatus being configured to extend through an opening in the mesh grill. Vagedes discloses the presence of an apparatus being configured to extend through an opening in the mesh grill. See fig. 3. Hence, one skilled in the art would find it obvious to modify the system of Keddy in view of Harris et al. to include an apparatus being configured to extend through an opening in the mesh grill of Vagedes for the purpose of space conservation.

Claim 12 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Keddy. It is well-known in the art of HVAC to design a screen with lateral members having a uniform width. Thus, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to incorporate the features of a screen with lateral members having a uniform width into the system of Keddy for the purpose of cost reduction.

Regarding claims 9, 10, 19 and 20, a mere change in shape is not a patentable distinction over the prior art. See In re Dailey, 149 USPQ 47 (CCPA 1976).

Regarding claims 11 and 17, the coloring of the mesh and or louvers are done solely for a decorative effect and therefore are given no patentable weight in a utility patent application.
